TERRIFYING threat. Out of a horror movie.
Scene: you get diagnosed with cancer, sent to surgery maybe have organ removed. And it turns out the scan was FALSE + actually maliciously HACKED to show a bad condition not TRUE nor really there.
Like surgical SWAT-ing.

John Winthrop @johnWinthrop9 · Mar 28, 2019
I think technological unemployment might be a problem in the future, but there is really no evidence for it being a problem now, so it's a flimsy justification for UBI. UBI is literally a libertarian Boomer idea and it will probably make the problems it's supposed to solve worse.

#YangGang campaign just sent this out in an email blast to supporters. Powerful policy statement. So controversial, yet so brave.

What would give me to kidnap Marie Kondo and make her life a living hell. I would force her to dress up in elf and leprechaun outfits and subject her to pure awfulness and humiliation. Just terrible degradation and shameful acts. It would be so easy to break her spirit and drive her to seppuku, but I wouldn't let her do it. If I could train a dog to rape on command then I would totally do that as well. A really big dog like a mastiff. She would be so completely and utterly powerless to stop it, not to mention terrified. A b g ass dog is even scarier and life-threatening to a normal human but to a misde? Might as well be a dragon. I'd keep her in a cell and what's more is that I would actually place the key inside with her but put it in a high place. Not extremely high but just ever so slightly out of reach. It would drive her mad. I would dress her like a baby and force feed her 99 cent store baby food. I'd also pick her up like a child and toss her from one corner to the next. I'd grab her by one leg and swing her as hard and as fast as I could then hurl her to see how far she goes. I'd rent one of those giant inflatable bounce houses and body slam her all day until my arms got tired. I'd hold her down with 1 hand and slowly stick things up her butt just to see her squirm. I would stick her in dryers and turn them on and leave her in there for long periods of time. I'd force her to fight other midgets to the death. Just so many things I would do.

I have worked on Wall St. my entire adult life and I've seen some fucked up shit, but Pope Francis's homily this morning is honestly one of the most sociopathic things I've ever seen.
- Catholic Sat @CatholicSat · Sep 11, 2018

- John Winthrop @JohnWinthrop9 · Sep 7, 2018
You need a ultra-competent tech and/or auto manufacturing executive who can fix their production issues and plug their financing gap, but if you were an ultra-competent tech/auto guy why the fuck would you step into this nightmare? There is a lot of reputational risk.
- John Winthrop @JohnWinthrop9 · Sep 7, 2018
Tesla burned $3.5 billion in the trailing 12 months. They have $1.5 billion of bonds due next year and only $2.2 billion of cash on hand. Their production line is fucked up six ways to Sunday and the SEC investigation will make it difficult or impossible to tap the capital markets.
- John Winthrop @JohnWinthrop9 · Sep 7, 2018
Yes, if the board was doing its job, they would already have somebody lined up. The problem is finding some competent executive willing to take on the Herculean task of fixing the company.
- John Winthrop @JohnWinthrop9 · Sep 7, 2018
I think a bigger barrier to the board forcing him out is that they need to convince somebody to take his place and Tesla financing, production, etc. are a shitshow right now.

From the perspective of Western Europe, NATO involves voluntary defense spending targets (that they don't meet and there is no mechanism to enforce) and theoretical need to defend US against attack (which will never happen) in exchange for full protection of US defense umbrella.

John Winthrop @johnwinthrop · Jul 11, 2018
Western Euros aren't going to pull out. The US has to do it. These problems are US problems, not European ones. They don't care about saving US money, they have good relations with Russia, they don't want responsibility, core Euro defense contractors are very big & tied into NATO

NATO requires the US to fight a nuclear war against Russia that would end human civilization for the sake of Estonia (which is smaller than San Diego), but in the eyes of Europeans, NATO is actually ripping them off by asking them to spend more on their own militaries.

Jordan Peterson is treated like a high brow intellectual by lots of media people but his rapey rants against women are literally the same as posts from the r/incois subreddit Violent attacks are what happens when men do not have partners. Mr. Peterson says, and society needs to work to make sure those men are married.
"He was angry at God because women were rejecting him," Mr. Peterson says of the Toronto killer. "The cure for that is enforced monogamy. That's actually why monogamy endures."
Mr. Peterson does not pause when he says this. Enforced monogamy is, to him, simply a rational solution. Other wise women will all only go for the most high status men, he explains, and that couldn't miss either gender happy in the end.
Enforced monogamy is a necessary precondition against what he calls "equidistribution of outcomes" or efforts to equalize society. He casually calls them pathological or evil.
He agrees that this is a convenient. But preventing borders of single men from voicing, he believes, is necessary for the stability of society. Enforced monogamy is the only way to ensure that.
We need a few low status females and equally a distributed among men.
This law will not only help handle the ongoing and ever rising mass engaged epidemic, it will also allow men to select the female of his choice. The female of his choice will not have the idea of this matter. Single bachelor. Few events of them those engaged men. This would be the only go for the girl who looking mean. Can't be that happy of course.
This is why. Because women to like engagement.

Ya know, a lot of people talk about their love of their family, their love of their friends, their love of their country, their love of God, their love of Jaul pods - but what about their love of MS-13? Nobody talks about that. A real injustice.

I'm thinking of changing my bio to "MS-13 Respector" just in case anyone ever has any momentary doubt about my infinite respect and love for MS-13 and their immeasurable dignity.

John Winthrop @johnwinthrop9 · May 17, 2018
I'm glad everyone spent today productively affirming their respect for MS-13. I was getting worried that America had forgotten its obligation to honor MS-13.

I'm oversimplifying, but ex-colonies tend to start their own histories with a "The colonizers - they raped, they stole, they killed, they humiliated our ancestors" narrative.

Another aspect of this is that Americans get their ideas about foreign countries from how those countries (and their intellectuals) conceive of their history.

John Winthrop @johnwinthrop9 · May 17, 2018
Replying to @Chateaubriand
That is true, but part of this is the fact that it is an American TV program talking about a foreign country. People will always view the history of foreigners (including their alleged historical crimes) differently than their own.

The charge of genocide against America is pretty mainstream at this point. It's something you see on the History Channel and it gets brought up every Columbus Day and every time there is a discussion of American Indians.

Unless the only people you are reading are 19th century English writers (or Bartolomé de las Casas, who depicted the Spanish as slaughtering 10s of millions of Indians) and even then, I doubt that English writers had much to say about the Spanish.

himself. I don't know who's teaching today that Spain was uniquely genocidal.

Also the number of people who speak a language really has little to do with genocide or lack thereof. Cornish and Latin are both dead but the English didn't genocide the Cornish and modern Europeans didn't genocide the Romans.

The charge of genocide is leveled at the English and Americans all the time. Just google "American genocide" or some variant thereof. "America was built on slavery and genocide of natives" is part of the left's creed.

As a great dialoguer once said, "Realities are more important than ideas." The reality of what "dialogue" actually means in practice in the modern Catholic Church is much closer to what "Dr. Dialogue" is parodying than the ideal that Hillis, Merton, etc. are talking about.

Marx thought lumpenproles were a passive/potentially reactionary force while proles were revolutionaries. I suspect it's the other way around. If you have a job, you have something to lose. Lumpenproles/NEETs (not "workers of the world") are the ones that "have nothing to lose."

Trump's pre-politics Q Score with whites was only 8. With blacks it was 27 and with Hispanics it was 18.

So Francis is both relying on Enzariz and also defending him by defending Barros. The only "innocent" explanation is that Francis is literally demented/senile, but I don't think there is any evidence of that. He's been acting like this for decades.

Re: difficulty. "A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable, for he is known and carries his banner openly." Also true of the Church. Heresy inside is harder to overcome than outside.

I view the renewal of the Church as both higher in priority and higher in difficulty. If your entire project is based on subordinating the temporal authority to the spiritual, you need to have a functioning spiritual authority first.

Right now the pope and half the hierarchy are spending most of their time trying to trash Catholic moral and sacramental theology. If by some miracle, integralists created a Catholic polity, Francis would put the integralists in prison and reinstitute liberalism immediately.

I'm an Integralist and this is all well and good, but the Church is so internally fucked up that I think discussions about Catholic politics are mostly academic. Catholics can't create a Catholic polis until they recreate a functional Catholic Church. Physician heal thyself.

It's simple. Trump is rude and that's an unforgivable sin. In this country, you can get thousands of Americans killed/permanently maimed and waste trillions of dollars for no good reason and as long as you demonstrate good manners, people will treat you as an honorable man.
